from: H. Jones, "Biographical Register of Swaziland to 1902" 1993, p. 457-9
"Tibati was born around 1840".

In December 1889, British Army Captain Baden-Powell (later Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement), on the staff of the Anglo-Boer Joint Commission, wrote a description of Tibati and drew at least three pictures of her (no photos of her are known).

Tibati ruled in a difficult period, as Mbandzeni spent most of the 1880s granting concessions to whites, and the white powers in southern Africa focussed on Swaziland.

In May 1889, T. Shepstone Junior was supplanted as the iNgwenyama's adviser by Allister Miller, and thereafter Shepstone cultivated a close relationship with Tibati. When Mbandzeni died in October, Shepstone was immediately appointed as adviser to the Queen Regent.

Tibati signed for the establishment of the Provisional Government Committee. However she would not sign the Organic Proclamation of 13 September 1890 to establish the Government Committee, leaving this to her indvuna Mgoqo Dvuba.

In 1894 the South African Republic (Transvaal) made efforts to make Tibati sign another Organic Proclamation giving the Transvaal power to administer Swaziland without annexing it. Tibati made it clear that she would prefer Swaziland to be under the British. In August she dismissed Shepstone and appointed George Hulett as chief secretary, but the deputation she sent to London in November had no success.

In February 1895, Tibati signed a proclamation surrendering her powers as regent to Bhunu as King. In March she was present when Transvaal Vice-President Smit and Commandant-General Joubert came to officially recognise Bhunu as king. As she was sick, she left the talking to Bhunu and the new iNdlovukazi, Labotsibeni Mdluli.

In November she died at eNkhanini apparently of a throat infection, after several months of illness.

from: H. Jones, "Biographical Register of Swaziland to 1902" 1993, p. 109-11

Logcogco, son of Mswati II and Tibati Nkambule, was born around 1860 and died in 1922. Logcogco apparently took no part in Mbandzeni's granting of concessions, but did witness the granting of one concession after the King's death (a mineral concession to Shepstone).

In 1888, Logcogco and Mvelaphansi waMswati warned King Mbandzeni of Nkhopholo waMswati's plot to endanger the King's life. (The plot failed and Nkhopholo fled.)

When Mbandzeni died, Logcogco became Senior Prince and regent. He and his mother supported the appointment of Labotsibeni and Bhunu as the future monarchs.

His name headed the list of representatives when the Nation met the Anglo-Boer Joint Commission at Mbekelweni in December 1889. He signed documents relating to Shepstone's re-appointment as National Adviser; the establishment of the Provisional Government Committee; the Organic Proclamation of 1890 which established the Government Committee.

Neither Logcogco nor Tibati were present at the private and public 'showings' of Crown Prince Bhunu to the Nation in July and September 1895. Both were present, however, when the Transvaal representatives officially recognised Bhunu as king, 16 March 1895.

In 1898, in the period of the murder of Mbhabha, Governor of Zombodze, Logcogco played a stabilising role, meeting with the Transvaal representatives, Special Commissioner Johannes Krogh, and later, General Piet Joubert.

In 1903, when the British compiled a list of chiefs ranked according to importance, Logcogco was the only "chief" of the first rank. Logcogco's name appears regularly in minutes and signed documents throughout the minority of Sobhuza II, when Gwamile was Queen Regent.

In 1904, as 'Prince Regent', he signed the petition against the Swaziland Administration Proclamation.

In 1907, he led, with Malunge waMbandzeni, the delegation to London to protest (unsuccessfully) against the terms of the proclamation that partitioned Swaziland.

In 1913, Logcogco and Malunge led a deputation to Barberton to put more requests on the land issue to the new British High Commissioner, Lord Gladstone.

"Administrative Inquiry's Decision between Chief Mavela and Lofana", 15 February 1936, stamped "Office of the Swazi Nation, Lozitehlezi, Swaziland", signed by King Sobhuza II:

ABSTRACT OF TEXT (TWO PAGES)

The "libandla" of Ndlovudvwalile previously brought to me (Sobhuza) Lofana, heir of late Maphokela. They said Maphokela had appointed Mavela Dlamini to administer his chieftom to avoid appointing one of his sons who might then dispute chieftaincy after his death. I blessed Lofana as a chief and introduced him to the (colonial) government. Mavela then disputed this action. The land dispute between Chief Dalada, Mavela and Maphokela's people then arose.

Unopposed findings:

When Mboziswa returned from exile, Mbandzeni ordered Mhlaba (Motsa) to place Mboziswa at Magwazadili (Dladla's) place, to "gob'emadvolo". At the same time, Queen Mother Madolomafisha put Mavela in Mboziswa's care; Mboziswa placed him "just over" the Dudusi River.

"There was no order from the Queen to create Mavela as a chief so he remained subordinate to Mboziswa much as he is to Dalada today."

Magwazadili's land extended into the Transvaal. Before Mboziswa was placed there, Maphokela had already been placed (made a chief?) there, but in Transvaal, though "on the same 'siganga' that stretched into Swaziland. Maphokela later shifted to Swaziland and settled where ha and Mavela are today". This affair was greatly contended: some of Mboziswa's people claimed Maphokela was granted permission to re-locate in Swd by Labotsibeni; but the truth is that this was done in Madolomafisha's time. Others (of Mboziswa) claimed the permission was given when he shifted for the second time (within the same 'siganga'). This is illogical, and shows that Maphokela was not under Mboziswa.

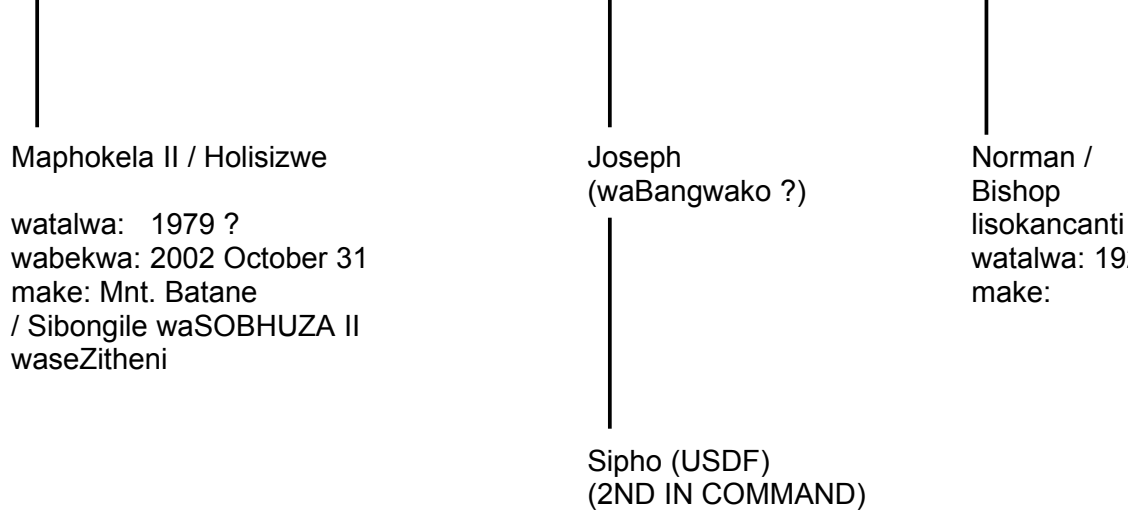

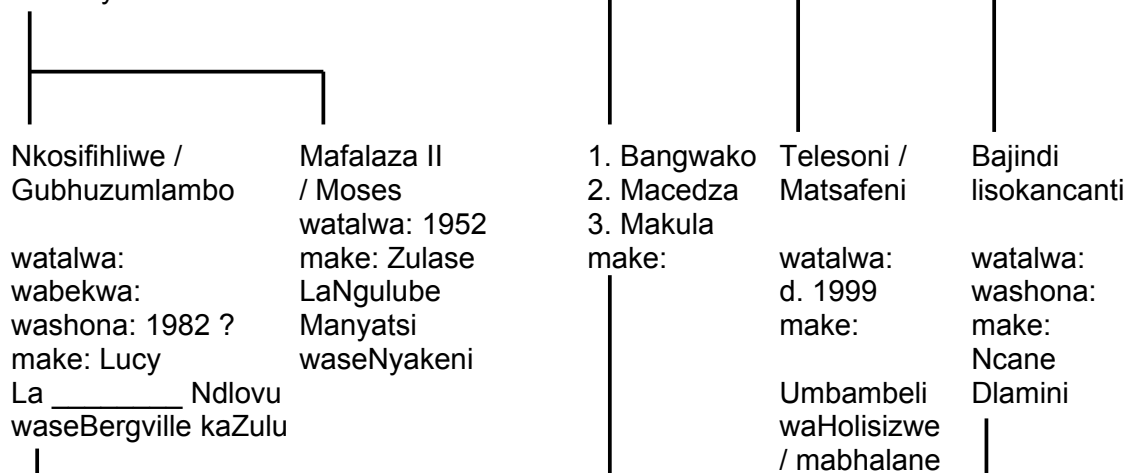

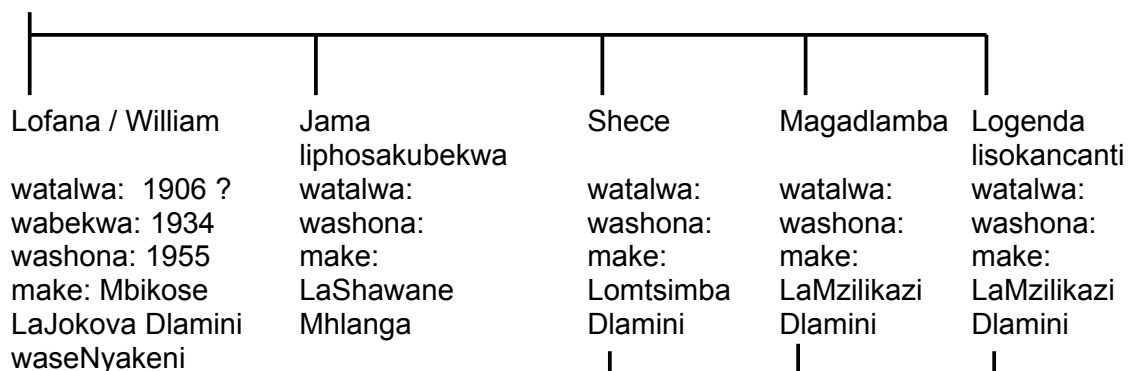

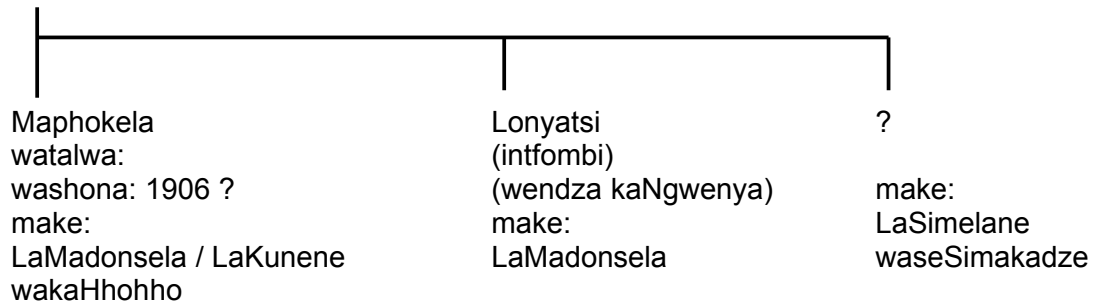

When Native Tax Registers were created, Mavela's name appears. More contention: Maphokela's indvuna sent a long list of people said to be present when Maphokela appointed Mavela. Mavela could not produce any witness, only stating that Labotsibeni appointed him. He denied any terrestrial claim and stated he was a chief through tax registration. "As referred to above" he had previously co-operated with Maphokela's people against Dalada. He desperately denied this until the Resident Commissioner's letter on the dispute was produced.

Mboziswa's people failed to prove Maphokela's subordination to them. Moreover Maphokela is separate in the Tax Register: Mboziswa has indvuna Dosi (Mabuza) just next to Maphokela. Therefore judgement in the land dispute is awarded to Maphokela.

I state that Mavela was awarded rights by the Queen Regent to help Maphokela's people with instructions not to interfere in their affairs. My conclusion is that he was 'inxusa' (lincusa'), and thereby got tax rights, "as is the case with some other chiefs".

I see no reason why Mavela should lose his tax rights so long as "he behaves himself well before these people". Therefore my letter to the Assistant Commissioner, Mankayane is withdrawn in favour of this ruling.
